Even so it is comparatively quiet and a serious contender for residence settlement purpose. The increasing number of BBMP parks in this sector is an added attraction with simultaneous existence of famous Hindu temples including Nimishamba, Rajarajeswari and Lord Venkateswara shrines.

Rajarajeshwari Nagar is a beautiful township of Bangalore. The area has generous amounts of parks. Global Village (a software park) is the home of numerous IT companies. There are film studios as well. When you first enter the township (from Mysore Road), you cannot but admire the welcome through a beautiful arch. Right at the arch you will also notice the elegant Gopalan Arch Mall. The area is dotted with numerous shopping outlets of all varieties. Groceries and vegetables outlets abound. For those who swear by organic foods, there's the famous Namdharis. There are various fine dining restaurants like Pakashala, 1947, Beijing Bites. There are Pizza outlets & Cafes too. And for those in a hurry to grab a quick meal, there are plenty of Darshinis.

Yearn to get away form the hustle & bustle, think you'll miss the peace & quite? Think again! There's plenty of that too, with the main roads & shopping areas yet conveniently accessible. Bangalore University is right next door. There are numerous temples.

Pros:

- Has everything! Shopping, Entertainment, Schooling, Software Park & Temples
- Plenty of Green Parks too! Quiet & Peaceful township!

Cons:

- Real Estate purchase prices are rivaling those in the city center.
- Plenty of people rushing in to settle down here is driving up real estate rentals too.
